Hello Adrian

Thank you for providing insight regarding the yet to be released paper. The dialogue and your paper did help me to understand the history of wolf data, how it was obtained & how data interpretation with subsequent disclosure affected wolf population management then and to this day. I recognize I will likely need to hone my communication skills to have a productive interaction with the WAC. It was nice to meet Peter David. Most important to me however is be an effective advocate for wolves and to maintain a firm stance on behalf of wolves.

I had totally lost track of my timeline in dealing with WAC and Eric Lobner so I wanted to get back to you on dates.

1. Mid April 2020 I left a phone message for Eric Lobner
  2. April 27, 2020. I sent Eric Lobner an email asked to represent myself as a private citizen on the WAC.
  3. May 7th, 2020 Eric responded with an email saying representatives on wildlife advisory committees are selected to represent statewide groups but not persons representing themselves.
The wolf committee groups are (a). USFWS (b). USFS (c.) USDA Wildlife Services (d.) WCC (e.) SCI (f.) Timber Wolf Alliance (g) WBHA (h). WI Bow Hunters Assoc. (i.) WI Cattleman's assoc. (j.) WI trappers assoc.
(k.) WWF (l.) WIFarm Bureau (m). WI county Forest assn.
  4. I replied on May 7th 2020 I would have hoped WI DNR would have be more responsive to a wider range of view points with a broad scope of representatives as is the case in MN.
  5. Early May, I sent an email to Jodi Habush Sinykin
  6. Shortly thereafter Sierra Club asked to be on the WAC committee, although Sierra Club was initially rejected.
- Thank you again

I'm sorry for the short notice but you know how it is these days — no time to breathe. I send a calendar invitation to one of your emails with this link to zoom room

We'll do our best in an hour and I can take follow-up questions by email or schedule another zoom if you leave with unanswered questions. See the shortcut below about focusing on the lines that relate to Wisconsin wolves.

Thanks for understanding

Please keep this confidential.

I would like an opportunity to explain the findings in our most recent paper (attached). If you are too busy to read the whole thing, please start at line 312-440 (ignore page numbers they got screwed up) and the supplementary materials lines 990-1056.

The paper now in press but not yet public. I offer it first as a way for you to get up to speed on the scientific debate (it's written to be understandable to policy-makers) but also to help you see through rhetoric when people mix value-based arguments (moral, ethical, personal preference) with scientific arguments and cut through that with your own understanding. I expect DNR and maybe other folks to patronize you, so I want to help to prepare you for the debates that will arise in the WAC or other similar venues.

. Any other allies on the WAC I should reach out to? Abi and Melissa, any others you recommend outside of the WAC?

To find a time in our busy schedules, please visit the when2meet link below (no password needed, just type in your name and submit to fill in your availability)

When we meet we will use my zoom room (please be aware that if you have not updated Zoom it may ask you to and this takes several minutes):

If anything is not accessible or you have any questions, don't hesitate to email me.

Looking forward to it and tanks for your discretion.

Adrian
