to the Department of natural resources and wolf managers,

I offer public comment from the perspective of a scientist who has worked for 23 years on Wolves in the western Great Lakes region. This letter generally addresses costs and benefits of management interventions with a focus on lethal and nonlethal methods, human attitudes towards wolves, and ecological and social dimensions of human-wolf interactions, all in relation to the policies that affect human-wolf coexistence.

Well not speaking directly to the specifics of your management plan, the attached document is written for P review and addresses wolf management in the USA.

Thank you for your attention to the attached which can also be found at http://faculty.nelson.wisc.edu/treves/pubs/preprint_Treves_Elbroch_Bruskotter.pdf
